

NRS Speech and Language Pathology Services: Teamwork matters

For over 30 years, NRS has provided a full range of rehabilitation services to adults and children with serious injuries or disabilities. Our experienced Speech and Language Pathologists are key members of the team.

Individuals with brain injury, stroke or psychiatric disorders often have complex cognitive communication challenges. These individuals require support from a Speech and Language Pathologist with extensive experience working with individuals with complex needs and working as part of a multi-disciplinary team. Functional goals may include being able to communicate and socialize more effectively in your daily life, at work or at school.

In person assessment and treatment is provided in the home, community, workplace and school, as well as at our clinic. We also offer virtual assessments and treatment.

Working closely with the medical and rehabilitation team, employer, teacher, insurer and legal representative, our experienced Speech and Language Pathologists provide:

- A comprehensive assessment of the person's speech, language, social communication, cognitive communication and swallowing function, and ability communicate effectively.
- Client and family education to support informed decision making in the rehabilitation process.
- For those with speech impairments, treatment to reduce stuttering and improve articulation.
- For those with language problems, treatment to improve the ability to understand spoken and written language, to convey ideas verbally and in writing, to communicate in social situations.
- For those who have cognitive communication problems (e.g. in the case of brain injury), treatment improve reasoning, problems solving, memory and organizational skills, as well as social communication skills.
- Consultative input to address barriers to communication, including sleep disorders, pain and mood.

NRS has been providing home, work, school and clinic based rehabilitation services to adults and children with brain injuries, spinal cord injuries, orthopaedic injuries, burns, amputations, psychological/psychiatric disorders and other complex injuries for over 30 years. We have helped thousands of people to successfully rebuild their lives.
